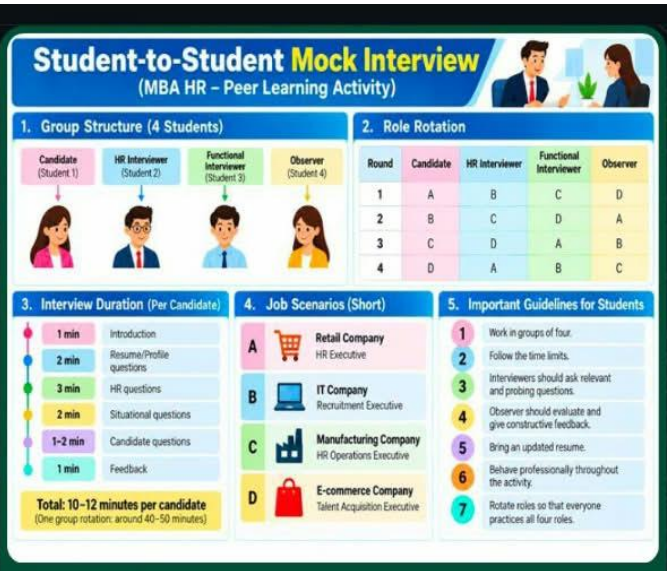
Name of the co-ordinators	Ms. Y. Nagamani, Assistant Professor
Target Audience	MBA students- HR specialization
Total no of students	54
About the event	The Department of Master of Business Administration organized a Peer Learning Event on Student-to-Student Mock Interviews to provide students with practical exposure to recruitment and interview processes. The event created a collaborative learning environment where students assumed the roles of interviewers and interviewees, enabling them to gain firsthand experience in handling professional interviews. Through peer interaction and constructive feedback, participants enhanced their confidence, communication skills, and interview preparedness.
Objective of the event	1. To familiarize students with interview procedures and selection processes. 2. To improve communication, confidence, and interpersonal skills. 3. To develop students' ability to present their strengths effectively during interviews. 4. To encourage peer learning through observation and feedback. 5. To prepare students for campus placements and career opportunities.
Activities Conducted	• Formation of interviewer and interviewee groups. • Conduct of mock interview sessions on various HR and technical aspects. • Evaluation of communication skills, body language, confidence, and subject knowledge. • Peer feedback and discussion on strengths and areas for improvement. • Faculty observations and guidance for interview success.

Outcome of the Event	Students gained practical interview experience and improved their ability to respond confidently to interview questions. The activity enhanced communication, presentation, listening, and professional interaction skills. Participants developed greater awareness of employer expectations and identified areas for further improvement in their interview performance.
Feed back	Students appreciated the peer-learning approach and found the mock interview sessions highly interactive and beneficial. The opportunity to act as both interviewer and interviewee helped them understand different perspectives of the recruitment process. Participants expressed that the activity significantly increased their confidence and readiness for future placement interviews.
Linkage with Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs):	SDG 4 – Quality Education: Promoted experiential learning and development of employability skills through practical training. SDG 8 – Decent Work and Economic Growth: Enhanced students' career readiness, interview skills, and employability competencies required for professional success. SDG 17 – Partnerships for the Goals: Encouraged collaboration, peer learning, and knowledge sharing among students.
Conclusion	The Peer Learning Event on Student-to-Student Mock Interviews was successful in providing MBA students with valuable practical exposure to interview situations. The activity enhanced communication, confidence, and professional competencies while fostering collaborative learning. It served as an effective platform for students to prepare themselves for placement opportunities and future career advancement.



Dear Students,

Tomorrow, we will conduct a Student-to-Student Mock Interview Activity as part of our MBA HR peer-learning session.

All students are instructed to:

Bring an updated copy of your resume.
Be prepared with a 1-minute self-introduction.
Be familiar with the details mentioned in your resume.
Prepare for basic HR and situational interview questions.
Be ready to answer questions related to your strengths, weaknesses, career goals, skills and achievements.
Dress in formal/appropriate attire and maintain professional body language.
Carry a pen and notebook for noting feedback.
Be punctual and actively participate in all the assigned roles.
Interviewers should prepare relevant questions based on the candidate's resume and assigned job role.
Observers should carefully observe the interview and provide constructive feedback.

Please come prepared and make the activity as realistic as possible, just like an actual job interview.

Bring your updated resume without fail.
